To make this game, you need a Cuttera Cake Boxpaper Cupmarkersome double-sided adhesive foam tape or similar things. We finished a cake and got a pretty hard cake box, so I cut out the top of the box and get a side to make a basketball court. The basket is used with a paper cup and glued to the paper. You can do this in a few minutes. Our editors research, test and recommend the best products: Find out more about our evaluation process here. We may receive commissions for purchases made through our selected links. Basketball lovers who need a ball that can go from indoor court to street play to casual free throws in their driveway need a do-it-all pick that will last. Spalding is the brand of choice for ballers from beginners to pros, and their Zi/O tournament ball is a fan favorite. This ball has the ultimate flexibility for indoor or outdoor games: the composite leather cover has enough surface pebbling to survive outdoor conditions without losing the touch you need in an indoor game. It meets the strict NBA requirements for size, and foam pad creates an improved soft feel and grip. Hoopsters loved this ball bang for the buck and said it didn't bulge or empty after a few months of play on different surfaces. Just because you have a budget doesn't mean you can't find high-quality basketball for your game. Wilson's NCAA-sized ball has smooth looks and regulatory standards for a professional game in a casual setting. The Optima rubber cover of this ball has an increased durability that leads to a more consistent bounce and performance when you need it most. Its super-wide channels lead to better grip and control as you dribble, and the ball's stunning multi-color looks combine flawless shape and function. Basketball fans who bought the ball loved its visual curb appeal and said it was budget-friendly enough to buy one for themselves and their children. If you're committed to your basketball team (or just need an indoor court to stay in shape in the colder months), you need a reliable ball that gives you an edge in the competition. Wilson's Evolutionball is a bestseller that meets all the requirements of stellar indoor basketball. The composite leather cover of this ball dissipates moisture so you can keep your grip during an intense game. Its padded interior gives a softer feel for improved touch and handling, and the high-definition pebbling creates friction so that the ball doesn't get away from you. Thousands of ballers love this selection for his Balance between firm grip and soft feeling, and some trainers even rang and said that they have relied on this model for years. Outdoor basketball players are made a little different from indoor balls: they have less pebbling to compensate for increased friction on rough outdoor surfaces. They are usually made entirely of leather (instead of a composite) for a higher durability. Franklin's Streetball checks all outdoor basketball requirements with Designs and sizes for men, women and children. The high-quality rubber and yarn construction of this ball withstands unpredictable cement or asphalt surfaces. The extra-deep channels and ultra-grip rubber help you maintain control during your game. Outdoor players who checked the ball loved how well it bounced and held air, and said the rubber handle was comparable to more expensive balls. There's nothing more satisfying than listening when your shot glides effortlessly through a basketball net, but becoming a reliable offensive player takes time. If you teach a younger player how to sink his free throws (or brush them to your own skills) and need an easy way to show the right hand positioning, Baden's SkilCoach Shooter's Ball can point you in the right direction. This ball comes with right and left prints on the surface to promote the right one-handed shooting form. The rubber cover withstands both outdoor and indoor games, and with enough practice you can break bad habits and consistently sink shots in no time. Coaches and parents love how this ball helped their young players establish an ideal hand placement for higher scores, and said it reduced much of the frustration their children had when they tried to shoot with other balls. Women are just as tough on the court as men, but their high-profile basketball eras are a little different – the WNBA's standard size for basketball is 28.5 instead of the 29.5 NBA standard. If you're a woman who loves to give her everything on the court and wants regulatory equipment, you should grab Spalding's WNBA Replica Outdoor Ball before your next game. This ball meets the size and weight requirements of the WNBA and is ideal for indoor or outdoor games. The patented two-panel construction improves your grip and feel when you shoot tires, and the orange and beige coloring sets them apart from other balls. Women who bought the ball said it held well during the games and noticed that it made a great gift for daughters and granddaughters. Entry basketball games are an easy, fun way to get kids moving, but you need to help keep their interest when you're trying to improve and move past frustrating roadblocks. Colorful gear makes everything more exciting, and Spalding's Rookie Gear Basketball is a rainbow-inspired choice that keeps kids on the court. This ball is not only smaller in size for small hands, but also 15 percent lighter than standard youth balls for easier handling. It can be used to casually shoot free throws in your driveway or on an outdoor field or more intense exercises in a to make. Parents of young children loved how this ball stood out during school activities and said that the lighter weight and softer feel of the ball improved their child's grip for a more competitive game. When it's hot outside, many basketball players are forced to find a gym or wait until the evening to get their game. However, they have Still have some outdoor practice in daylight when you move your game from country to sea, and the Dunnrite Pool/Water Basketball is safe to use in your pool. This medium-sized sphere is designed to withstand sun, chlorine and heat without fading or emptying. The smaller size is perfect to help your kids get into the action, and it will be easier on your pool hoops than a large water ball. Aquatic basketball fans loved the light blue color and durability of the ball, saying it was held up after months of swimming in a pool and was a great addition to any pool party. If you have tire dreams that go beyond your driveway or the nearby park, you will want to practice with the same ball as the pros. Wilson's tournament game basketball is regular size, and it's exactly the model used during Desmarch Madness. Wilson's Tournament Ball has a moisture-absorbing cover and patented inserted channels for the best grip and handling in sweaty face-offs. The pillow core delivers a more consistent jump, so you won't have any nasty surprises when trying to drizzle an opponent, and the composite leather cover is ideal for intense indoor competitions. Basketball players who bought the ball said it had a better feel and was easier to handle than other options they had tried. A youth basketball coach rang and said he preferred the ball for practice. Dejon Knight, 16, didn't expect to leave the bench at all this year, let alone win the game for East Haven High School. The Connecticut native has cerebral palsy, which makes it difficult for him to play at the same level as any other student. Although he is not actually an official team member, he attends every training and game and makes serious efforts to improve every time he comes on the pitch. RELATED: Maroon 5 Band Members Drop To Floor To Comfort Overwhelmed Fan But last week the situation changed for Knight when he was called to play in a game. When he put on a jersey, he mentally prepared to make it a time to shine. Moments after he was on the pitch, Knight was in possession of the ball when the clock ticked off. After months of training, he aimed at the basket, slowly squeezed the basketball out of his hands and watched him sink straight into the basket and score the winning goal. The moment it came in, the entire student section of the crowd and the rest of the team stormed the pitch and congratulated Knight on the performance. RELATED: This woman just landed her dream job At 91 years old was his best friend and teammate Adam Perrotti next to him when it all happened, and not be prouder of what Knight has achieved. I knew what he's been through all these years and things, and just to see his goals and dreams come true meant a lot to me. Perrotti told WFSB. After the tearful basket, all students and staff are hoping the superstar will be seen on ESPN. Anthony Verderame, the director of athletics at East Haven, said: a positive influence without question. He's there every day, he's on time, he works hard and he contributes as much as he can. He sets the bar for the rest of the team. RELATED: This New Hampshire town is issuing tickets for Good Behavior Knight, which also advocates for other people with disabilities to understand. He told The Blaze: We're like normal people, we can do the same thing. It may take a little more time, but we can keep up with the big ones.
